

Lionheart (Jeffrey Johnson, Lawrence Lipnik, John Olund, Richard Porterfield, Kurt-Owen Richards, and Michael Wenger) gives voice to medieval, Renaissance, and new-music repertoires in concert, on radio, and in recordings. Touring extensively throughout the U.S. and Europe, Lionheart has collaborated with other performers including Anonymous 4, and premiered new works by composers Julia Wolfe and Marc-André Dalbavie. 2009 saw the release on the Cantaloupe label of composer Phil Kline's John the Revelator commissioned by WNYC Radio for Lionheart with the string quartet ETHEL; in December 2009 Lionheart continued its tradition of New York holiday concerts at the Metropolitan Museum and at The Cloisters in New York City. Lionheart's 2010-11 season included appearances at the Folger Library in Washington, D.C. , at the Getty Museum in Los Angeles (December 4), and return engagements at the Metropolitan Museum's Medieval Sculpture Hall (December 21) and The Cloisters (April 17, 2011). Lionheart is represented by Bernstein Arts, Inc.
